

Paul Connett's 2011 Speech To Conspiracy Theorists

On April 4, 2011, Connett addressed a meeting in New Zealand that was co-sponsored by a magazine called Uncensored that promotes a variety of conspiracy theories. He was introduced by Jonathan Eisen, the editor of Uncensored. The magazine's website has posted a number of controversial articles, including this one that links to an anti-semitic article on the web. A recent issue of Uncensored included the following headlines:

- “The Sandy Hook Fraud”
- “Was Jack the Ripper Winston Churchill’s Father?”
- “Kennedy Shooter Finally Identified”
- “New NASA Images of UFOs”

In his remarks to this audience in New Zealand, Connett alluded to the 9/11 tragedy:

“... the people here, by and large, I suspect, are people that will look at the evidence — look at the scientific evidence — look at the evidence and, take, let that evidence take them wherever it may.

Whether it's about 9/11, whether you believe that a passport managed to jump out of a hostage's pocket, escape a fireball that melted a building, and managed to land in the rubble of the 9/11.

I mean, we need to pursue questions like that. Obviously, the American media can't pursue questions like that because they're frightened of where it takes them.”

Connett addresses a 2011 New Zealand meeting that was sponsored by a magazine called Uncensored.
